Charlotte, N.C. 28226.

Dear Rolf,

I am not sure whether you are expecting another Column from me just yet, but one of the deadlines you gave me in a letter you wrote back in October was March 20th, so this letter should meet that deadline if you need it.

You may feel the enclosed Column trespasses on your territory and if so, just tear it up and throw it in the W.P.B! I shall not mind.

Things have not been too easy for me at home just recently as I get involved in a good many domestic chores, so I just have to snatch odd moments to do my thinking and writing. However, if you want another Column from me in 1989, I will do my best to let you have something.

I have had to do a bit of chasing up to get my copies of C.R. & A., as I never received the copies for October and December, 1988, and I still have not received them. This is a nuisance because so far I have had a complete set since 1976. However, it turns out that they are despatched from a central distribution office, which by good fortune is located only three miles away from where we live, at the Ambassador Press. I have now been in touch with them and they are hopeful that they will be able to extract further copies for me from Wiley's. I hope they are successful.

With best wishes,

Yours sincerely,
